COMMERCIAL SCHOOL GRADUATES ON JOBS OF M. C. RY. STRIKERS

Michigan Central Clerks Walkout and Help Is Recruited From Local Business College.

Hopes of Janesville Business College students in securing far jobs when their commercial courses have been completed in the school of bounded up a hundred per cent yesterday morning. The impetus to future materialization of their hopes appeared in the form of a letter addressed to W. V. Dale, head of the institution, and was written by W. G. Morgan, freight and ticket agent of the Michigan Central railway offices located at Chicago Heights, Illinois. The matter was one of praise for the work of Horace McElroy of this city, a recent graduate of the school, who accepted a position in the freight department under Mr. Morgan. The letter was profuse in his praise for young McElroy.

There is another story, however, connected with Mr. Morgan and Michigan Central office jobs. Positions are evidently easy to secure at the present time. Mr. Dale has been able to accommodate the Chicago Heights office with two graduates aside from McElroy. Charles McKee, of this city is now employed there as a rate clerk. He was first assigned to a position at Beloit, but went to the Michigan Central a few days ago, Wednesday Mr. Dale, Mr. F. Peck, a youth from Whitewater, to the M. C. offices. He was slated for a billing clerk's job.

About a week ago the clerical forces of the Michigan Central offices at Chicago Heights, Cleveland, Detroit, and many other large places and at numerous smaller rail points precipitated a general walkout when the company refused to meet their demands for a wage increase. Incidentally, the hooved those higher up to keep matters moving; hence the employment of commercial school graduates in positions heretofore held down by able employees of long service. The business college students entered the work on good wages, considerably higher, in fact, than those paid the old help.

Providing the new men can make good they will no doubt hold the positions. This, however, local railway clerks relate, hinges on the extent and the success of the strike. If the walkout is general throughout the offices of the Michigan Central and the strikers are well organized, then the chances of these embryos to remain are decidedly small.

The local clerks reason this way because it is figured that with a general walkout and the striking forces well organized, the general condition of freight and office matter will shortly be reduced to such an extent that the railway will find it highly imprudent to take back the old help by granting the wage demands, or at least a salary raise through the means of arbitration.

On the other hand they figure that if the strike is not general and if it is only confined to Chicago Heights, Detroit and Cleveland, and several other large cities, the railway will be able to get along without taking back the old employees. Hence, in this case, the opportunity of these students remaining is more pronounced.

The local clerks, however, sound the warning that although at the time the new men are receiving wages in excess of those paid to the old help, there will be a decrease as soon as the new jobholders do not like the change there are always more men to step into the positions left by the strikebreakers.

WOMEN OF CITY WILL MEET AT CITY HALL

Chicago Lady Will Speak to All the Women of the City Saturday Afternoon on Y. W. C. A. Project.

Tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at the city hall, all the women of the city will meet a mass meeting to arouse enthusiasm in the organizing of a Young Women's Christian association. The call for such an institution is becoming greater every day and the women of Janesville Civic League have secured Miss S. C. A. to come and talk to the women of the city on this subject.

Every woman and young girl in the city should attend this meeting, as it will mean much in the first steps of organizing such an association and it is hoped that a large number will be present.

TOMORROW LAST DAY "BIRTH OF A NATION"

D. W. Griffith's Gigantic Spectacle at Myers Theatre Has Played to Crowded Houses All Week.

Tomorrow night will see the last presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Myers Theatre for the present engagement. This picture has thus far played to the biggest business in the history of the Myers Theatre, hundreds of people having been turned away on several different dates.

Inasmuch as a great many people have been unable to see "The Birth of a Nation" during its present engagement, it is more than likely that Manager Myers will bring it back at a later date.

JANESVILLE MAN WEDS FORT ATKINSON GIRL

Frank Dempsey of Janesville, and Miss Gertrude White of Fort Atkinson, were quietly wedded at the home of the bride's parents in Fort Atkinson on Wednesday of this week. The marriage comes as a surprise to all their friends. After a short visit in this city, the bride and groom will make their home in Indiana, where Mr. Dempsey has accepted a position.

WATCH SORE THROATS

because swollen glands or inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and lung trouble easily follows. As Nature's corrector of throat troubles the pure cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is speedily converted into germ-resisting tissue; its tested glycerine is curative and healing, while this wholesome emulsion relieves the trouble and rebuilds the forces to resist tubercular germs and avert the weakening influence which usually follows.

If any member of your family has a tender throat, get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion to-day. Physicians prescribe it to avert throat troubles, overcome bronchial disorders and strengthen the lungs. No alcohol or harmful drugs. Always insist on Scott's. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-12

DR. WAYNE MUNN IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT BY THE NEW BOARD

Elected Head of the Park Association for the Coming Year. Other Officers Named.

At the first meeting of the newly elected board of directors of the Janesville Park association, held Thursday evening in their offices in the Jackson block, Dr. Wayne Munn was elected president of the association for the coming year. H. O. Nowlan was re-elected secretary, Edward Barker vice president, and Frank P. Croak treasurer. President Munn immediately appointed Charles Putnam in charge of the speed department and will make other committee appointments later. Much business was discussed, plans laid for the coming campaign to clear the association from indebtedness and it was demonstrated that the entire board will work in perfect harmony for the continuation of the high standard of the fair and the various business interests that are involved. The other two members of the board are, William Moore and John Soultman.

ADVENTURES OF COYOTE ENDED AFTER CAPTURE

The little coyote, which managed to escape from the owner, August Dreftahl, is now back safely tied at the residence of William Dreftahl, 13 North Franklin street. Police officers are wondering what would have been the fate of the little animal had the two mighty department hunters, Jay Hymer or Lorenzo Culp, been on hand with their "sure-death" shotguns. One of the officers declared that the coyote was not traveling one-fifth as fast as a frightened rabbit and consequently the police hunters might have hit it on the trot, but serious doubts were entertained of their marksmanship.

TIGER-CRIMSON GAME SATURDAY BIGGEST OF DAY

Few Football Contests Tomorrow Will be of Importance—Conference Leaders Idle.

(By Striker.)

Saturday will hold little interest in football circles and in the west in the conference the eleven will be idle, preparing for the titanic combats to follow for the unraveling of the "big nine" title is tied with. The big game Saturday is whether Harvard can beat Princeton. That is the one big game on schedule and eastern interest centers on the outcome for if the Tigers beat the Crimson they will have a clear path to the championship, along with Cornell, if they win their remaining games with Yale next Saturday, which now appears to be an assured fact.

Illinois, Minnesota with Chicago are still unblemished by defeat, and Wisconsin who have a mighty slim chance for the title by a series of roundabouts will be idle. The coaches of these three teams will put their final efforts in drilling the squads for the next week, Chicago plays Minnesota next Saturday at Chicago and at that time it will be determined if the defeat that the Badgers sustained was merited. On the thirteenth Wisconsin will have to have a battle with Ohio and the Badger must win from the Illini and from the Gobbers a week later to lay any claims to the title. Her claims will be substantiated providing Chicago loses to either Illinois or Minnesota. It is a case of being "a long way to the bacon, but Wisconsin's heart's right there."

Chicago will rest up, playing the Hawks and all indications point that the Maroons, elated over their last week's tight victory, will have the Indian sign on the invaders. The Haskell tribe has been whipped twice (twice) and the Maroons will probably play under the "safety first" method. Northwestern plays Missouri, which is the best game in the middle west as both teams are neither strong enough to have a decided advantage, Indiana and Ohio clash for a fight for fourth position, and Ohio should be the winner. Purdue and Iowa clash in the only conference struggle.

Interconference contests are ended. Michigan faces a mighty foe in Cornell, erstwhile champions of the west for the Cornell squad lowered its Harvard colors. In Captain Barker they have a wizard runner and it looks as if Yost's machine is in for a beating. Since the dope went wrong so unexpectedly last Saturday, one must not be surprised if the Michigan eleven beats the eastern champs. Yost had stacked all his cards for this game.

Notre Dame, who has been beaten by Nebraska, will tackle the Army in the other interconference tilt and the South Bendiers will go into the contest with the short end of the betting. The Army is not highly regarded this year, but Notre Dame is not up to standard strength. The Michigan Aggies, after having their chests taken down by the unknown and unheralded Oregon Aggies, will probably give the Cornells a terrible jacking, for the Milwaukee team is hardly classed as a minor college team this year. Nebraska, claimants of the western title, will have soft sledding with Wesleyan.

In the east there is a good schedule for there are many championship struggles. Besides the Princeton-Harvard game, at Princeton, Yale plays Brown. Princeton is expected to win from the Crimson team, as Houghton has not shown his best since this year, but were strong with the backfield of Mahan, Enright and King. If Princeton plays all the football they have been taught it is fairly sure they will not feel the sting of defeat which they have evaded all season. The Colgate game showed that Yale has not improved much, but the Blue under new coaching may produce the goods in the last half of the season. No team in history has showed the pluck and luck of Yale in the doubtful moments.

Dartmouth and Pennsylvania will clash in another big game and Pittsburgh, a strong team, will buck up against Washington, and Jefferson. Walter Camp contends that Pittsburgh is the strongest team in the country this year and he should know.

King Lear, the college twirler with the Cincinnati Reds, has been invited to a carnival show in Muncie, Ind., where they were offering three cigars to any one hitting a negro with his head through a hole in the canvas. Lear beamed the black three times and knocked him out. The King, however, refused to smoke the cigars.

Duffy Lewis announced in Boston that he had been made an offer of $750 a week to go into vaudeville, and turned it down. George Foster, also got a stage offer, but passed it and fled to Oklahoma before any theatrical manager induced him to change his mind.

Outfielder Wilhoit of the Vernon club, who is to be a member of the Boston Braves next season, was chosen by four different clubs in the Boston league, but he chose the one which he would go to. He selected the former champions.

J. E. O'Brien, former Cornell oarsman, is directing the work of seven Cornell rowing teams, while John Hoyle is looking after the training of 100 freshmen. Coach Charles E. Courtney is expected to take charge of the candidates early next year. He is slowly recovering from the effects of his fall and an injury to his head at Poughkeepsie last June.

Outfielder Rube Oldring of the Athletics has announced his retirement from the game. He says he means to devote his time henceforth to his farm near Bridgeton, N. J. This is all right to say in the fall, but the expectation is that Oldring will be in harness again next year as usual.

Babe Ruth of the Red Sox bought a $900 diamond ring with a part of his world's series money and then promptly proceeded to lose it. Babe called upon the Baltimore police to assist him in recovering it, but up to date has received no favorable clews.

Mark Payne, a halfback on the Dakota Wesleyan team, now holds the drop kick record in intercollegiate football. The new star in national football recently sent a drop kick spinning from the sixty-three yard mark through Northern Normal school's goal posts, thereby scoring the longest drop kick for a goal in the history of the game. Previous to this feat the record drop kick was that of sixty-two yards, achieved by P. J. O'Dea of Wisconsin against Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., on November 25, 1898. This kick is only exceeded by one other kick, a place kick by J. T. Haxall of Princeton against Yale on November 30, 1882, at New York, for sixty-five yards.

An insight into conditions in the minors is furnished by a remark of Jim Hayes of the Davenport Three-I club, in discussing the awarding of Driggs.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Princeton, N. Y., Nov. 4.—In the struggle at Princeton, on Nov. 4, one thing may favor the Tigers. The Harvard attack is primarily built around Mahan. At least, the attack is more effective for long aims when he is carrying the ball. Princeton, on the other hand, for once has more than one dangerous man in the backfield. The Cambridge players cannot afford to devote their entire attention to covering Tibbott, as they did Pendleton and Baker. Glick, Shea and Driggs are all dangerous men when they are totting the pigskin.

One of Princeton's greatest problems will be to hold the ground that punts by Driggs may gain. The Tiger ends have shown some fine work on the offense and have defended their stations well against a running attack. While they usually get down the field on punts, however, and while Highly has shown some good tackling, both he and Brown must improve vastly in this respect if they expect to keep Mahan from bringing the ball back and thus neutralizing much of the kicking ability shown by Driggs. Of course the latter will endeavor to either keep the ball away from Mahan or kick it over his head, but neither of these things is always easy to do. If a man continually kicks out of bounds in an effort to hold ground gained he not only loses distance, but robs his team of the possible chance of recovering a fumbled ball. No, the Tiger ends must learn to tackle more fiercely and more surely.

Chewing is the only way to get the rich taste of the tobacco leaf. And the only form of tobacco in which you get the leaf as Nature made it is the plug form.

A chew of Spear Head plug tobacco has a wonderful flavor such as you never did and never will taste in any other tobacco.

That Spear Head flavor is unique, mellow, fruity, everlastingly delicious and satisfying.

Spear Head has been famous for a third of a century as the richest, tastiest of chews.

It's made of sun-ripened red Burley. And it's produced by the most modern methods, which develop the luscious flavor of the leaf to the supreme degree.

It is safeguarded at every step in its making. The factory is clean and sanitary—the processes are pure-food processes.

When the choice red Burley has been pressed into mellow, sweet Spear Head plugs you have a chew that simply can't be equalled.

Spear Head is the high-quality chew of the world.

Try Spear Head—you'll never again be satisfied with any other chew. It's 5c and 10c cuts.

When the strong opposition that at first existed to numbering football players is remembered it is another example of how gradual, but how sure, is the growth of any valuable innovation or real reform. Now about the only colleges which stand out against it are Yale and Harvard, which should have led instead of allowed it. It is probable that they will adopt the idea in the near future.

"Dick" Hoblitzel, first sacker for the Red Sox, is a dentist during the off season. "Hobby" always carries around with him during the baseball season a kit of tools designed to assist one in rendering first aid to molar sufferers. Players who have been given "first aid to the wounded" by him insist that he's a real, regular painless person.

"Bill" Carrigan, manager of those Boston Red Sox, doesn't like to sleep. It seems like a waste of good time," he explains. "When Carrigan first broke into the big league his habit of sitting up late at night brought him several rebukes from his manager, but he explained his aversion to sleep, demonstrated that he could get along nicely on six hours a day, and thereafter was excused from 'turning in' at 10 or 10:30.

One thing in which the Phil club is odd is that not a single player has been with the club six years. The veteran of the lot is Fred Luderus. He has been a Phil five and a half years, having been secured from the Cubs. McQuillen was with the Phils in 1907, but went to other teams and did not return until this year. Dode Faskert is the next veteran to Luderus, going to the club from Cincinnati in 1911.

Fifty-nine young American lives were sacrificed to baseball during the season of 1914, according to statistics compiled and vouched for by R. Vickery of Chicago. Thirty-eight of the baseball fatalities of the season were caused by being hit on the head by the ball direct from the hands of the pitcher; six players were killed in fights during or after games; six died of overexertion, and three from collisions. Injuries on the baseball field showed a slight decrease over 1914, but the records compiled by Mr. Vickery tend to show that 7 per cent of the players in organized baseball were injured in some way or other during the season of 1915.

Attempting to pick the best "lead-off" man in the two major leagues is a hazardous task, but it is doubtful if there would be much dispute over the selection if the honor were given to Miller Huggins, the veteran manager and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals. For years Huggins has been recognized as one of the greatest "first-up" men in the game, having won distinction in that position while with Cincinnati and since he has been with St. Louis.

NEGLIGENT OFFICERS DEPRIVED OF CIVIL RIGHTS AND POSITIONS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Petrograd, Nov. 5.—Russia's way with the inefficient is illustrated in the report of the court-martial which has just sentenced the captain and lieutenant-commander of the Russian cruiser Jemchug, which was destroyed by the Emden at Penang a year ago. Both officers were accused of negligence.

The court found both officers guilty, and "taking into consideration their hitherto unblemished record and their brave service during the Russo-Japanese war," passed the following sentence:

"Both officers to lose all civil rights, to be dismissed from the imperial service, and deprived of all decorations. Captain Baron Tcherkassoff to lose his rank of baron and be sent to jail for three and a half years; Lieutenant-Commander Kulibin to be sent to jail for a year and a half."

DYNAMITER ASKS FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS FOR HIS MANY INJURIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 5.—Blackened chest.

Left jaw bone broken in many places.

Blinded in one eye.

Right eye affected.

Heart affected so as to cause heart disease.

All teeth on left side smashed.

Seriously impaired hearing.

Brained left arm.

Neck made permanently stiff.

Memory affected.

This is worth $400, according to Edward Erickson, a farm hand who has filed claim with the state industrial commission for compensation for injuries received while blasting stumps. It all happened in one day, according to the farm hand. A stick of dynamite exploded prematurely and inflicted all of the injuries at once. He asks $400 and doctor bills.

Where good dressers congregate, Custom Clothes predominate—

In the meeting places of the "upper strata," you find Custom Clothes well to the fore. Men who appreciate the finer things of life put Custom Clothes in their classification of things worth while—they realize that no satisfactory substitute for Custom tailoring has yet been devised.

Yet the advantages of Custom tailoring are no longer the special privilege of the well-to-do, by our system Custom tailoring becomes attractively inexpensive—any man can afford it.

Custom tailoring provides clothes that fit men perfectly and splendidly; provides weaves that are high caste and high class—guaranteed workmanship by expert journeymen tailors.

In Continental Tailored to Measure Clothes you find these advantages developed to their highest degree.

THE VATICAN AND THE WAR.

With Europe aligned in hostile camps, with the best of the sons of man united under one banner, the central powers and the allies, and Catholics, protestants, mohammedans, infidels and even atheists, battling side by side for one cause or the other, the attitude of the Vatican and its relation to the war prove a most interesting subject. One would hardly expect the Christian Science Monitor to handle this subject, but it does in the following well-written editorial.

"Of the many ponderous political problems, brought into clearer definition than ever before by the war, few are more interesting than that presented by the relations subsisting between the Vatican and the Consulta and the people of Italy. It is not a problem which lends itself to simple discussion. Its records are many, its history is long, and reaches much further back than the wars of liberation.
Any sufficient survey of the whole of it would fill volumes. It is possible, however, in view of the well-known bewildering rapidity with which history is being made at present, to obtain views of certain aspects of the question.

"When Cardinal Giacomo delle Chi-esa was elected pope, and assumed the pontifical name of Benedict XV.
little over a year ago, it was recognized that his task was one of extreme difficulty. An obvious compromise between the progressive and reactionary parties, he was hailed as a diplomatist, and with a quaint ingeniousness, simply avoiding the insignificance, a sign of relief was uttered in Rome and echoed throughout the Roman Catholic world for that a 'religious' pope had been succeeded by a 'political' one. The problem which proved too much for Pius X.
was consequently assumed by Bendict XV. This problem was, let it be said at once, a wholly impossible problem, attacked as Rome must necessarily attack it. It had a thousand ramifications, but what were its main great factors? Austria-Hungary, the last refuge, as she has been described, of reaction in Europe, was on one side and Belgium on the other.
Belgian Roman Catholicism was strong and implicitly obedient, but Austro-Hungarian Roman Catholicism was immeasurably greater. Belgium had been swept by the German forces; stories of the great outrages, which have since formed the subject of so much discussion, were beginning to be circulated; and the world, having gone to Belgium and viewed what it saw with something like horror, looked over its shoulder to Rome with the question: 'What will you do about it?' An Innocent III., says a recent writer on the subject, would have solved the question by means of the tremendous machinery of papal and penances, which then lay at the disposal of the pontiff, and before which even emperors and kings trembled. A Pius X. would have spoken out at any cost. But Benedict XV.
is neither an Innocent III. nor a Pius X., but a diplomatist. One of the recognized resources of the Vatican is silence, and the Vatican made use of it.

The facts here are instructive. Italy as a nation had declared herself neutral. Her statesmen, like the statesmen of other countries similarly situated, made it clear that this neutrality was, so to speak, a day-to-day policy, and that, if matters should so shape themselves as to make it clear that national interests demanded her entry on the struggle, she would enter it. From the first, however, it was evident that if she did enter it,
the one and only opponent would be Austria, the traditional foe. General Ricciotti Garibaldi, the one who took the field of propaganda and the fact of his doing so defined the issue clearly enough. The theater of the coming struggle must necessarily be the politically desirable one of the Trentino and Isonzo, and not the strategically desirable one of the Vosges. Then commenced that struggle, the real causes of which are only just coming to be seen, between the Vatican and the people. That the people of Italy, from the first, desired to enter the struggle on the side of the allies, is a matter of common record. The merchant of Rome and Milan, just recovering from the efforts of the Turco-Italian war, may have lacked enthusiasm or even expressed himself as strongly averse to any such action;
but as to the attitude of the artisan and peasant there never was any doubt.

"The people of Italy have always shown themselves generous. The sufferings of Belgium made a direct appeal to them, just as Serbia's desire for aid in the sea had, a year or so before, in spite of the opposite view taken by the government. The Consulta, however, as days passed into weeks, still remained strangely obdurate. Its policy began to assume, to an ever increasing extent, an aspect of trading and duplicity, difficult to understand until all the facts were known. A great and momentous struggle of 'interests' was in progress at the Vatican during these months.
Its nature is every day becoming less and less of a secret, and, as fact after fact comes to light, each phase of the struggle finds its counterpart in that which went on, at the same time, at the Consulta. The resignation of Sig-

nor Salandra, the great bid by Signor Giollitti for a return to power, the recall and triumph of the prime minister, were the rapid explosions which first revealed the intensity of the struggle, and ushered in the triumph of what must be regarded as the popular will. The Vatican had never appeared in the matter. It was free to define its attitude towards this new phase of the world struggle, and, within a few days, this attitude became apparent. The Genoese pope bowed to the inevitable. The Roman Catholic press throughout the country was allowed to support the cause of Italy against Austria, the official Vatican organ alone remaining silent.
"Some months ago a prominent European diplomatist, discussing the general situation with a representative of this paper, remarked that, whatever the original motives may have been for which the various nations had entered the war, there were one and all actuated now by a desire to get the utmost they could out of it.
We are very far from endorsing this statement. Italy, it is true, has laid herself open, very specially, to the charge; but in the case of Italy, those accustomed to weigh political actions in Rome will know where to look for an explanation, at least in considerable part, of her tergiversation."

Really, the eastern suffragists have no real reason to be encouraged over the election outcome, but they may now decide upon an invasion of congress and seek to have a national law passed unimpaired of the fact that an amendment to the constitution must be voted on by the states themselves before it becomes effective.

If the governor keeps all his speak-votes at the next election.

How about reducing our budget
three-eighths of a mill per dollar val-

Thursday's Markets.
Chicago, Nov. 5.—While top hogs at $7.55 were 10c lower than a week ago and lowest in six months, weighty packing kinds are 5@15c above previous Thursday.
General price range of hogs is narrowest in many weeks, with pigs and 140@170 lb. average 20@40c below a week ago. The Swift pigs cost $6.35 yesterday, averaging 105 lbs.
This week's receipts of swine are the largest since last June, and promise to increase in volume. Average weight this week is lightest on record.
General quality of cattle this week is unusually poor. Lambs also are steady. The price range will undoubtedly get wider.
Average price of hogs at Chicago was $6.85 against $6.99 Wednesday, $6.85 a week ago, $7.70 a year ago and $7.73 two years ago.
Quality of Pigs Good.
Pigs and underweight hogs were in large supply yesterday and sold 15@ 25c lower. Weighty swine declined 5@10c and closed comparatively stiffly, while light and average decidedly weak. General quality of pigs never was better for this season of the year, there being few sick offerings considering the size of receipts.
Bulk of sales $6.60@7.20
Heavy butchers and shipping 7.15@7.50
Light butchers 190@220
lbs 1.45@1.90 lb. 6.50@7.40
Heavy packing, 250@400
lbs 6.55@6.85
Mixed packing, 200@250
lbs 6.80@6.90
Rough packing, 150@200
lbs 6.25@6.50
Port to best pigs, 60@135
lbs 3.75@6.75
Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head 6.00@6.60
Veal Calves Sell Down.
Good cattle were scarce yesterday and anything desirable sold steady, while poorer kinds were 15@40c lower than a week ago. Veal calves are 50c lower than a week ago. Quotations:
Choice to fancy steers $5.70@10.40
Poor to good steers 6.15@8.50
Yearlings, fair to fancy 6.80@10.50
Fat cows and heifers 4.75@8.30
Canner cows and heifers 2.75@4.60
Native bulls and stags 4.00@7.40
Poor to fancy veal calves 6.75@10.50
Range steers 6.50@8.65
Lambs Generally Lower.
A few choice lambs sold steady yesterday, reaching $9.00. Bulk of lambs and sheep, however, sold 10@20c lower. Bulk of lambs $8.25@
8.85 and ewes $5.25@5.60. Quotations:
Lambs, common to fancy $7.70@9.00
Lambs, poor to good culls 6.50@7.60
Yearlings, poor to best 6.50@7.40
Wethers, poor to best 5.80@6.30
Ewes, inferior to choice 3.75@5.60
Bucks, common to choice 3.75@4.75 writes. "I refer to the enormous sum

Lazy Leon.
When the cook is in love,
And her beau calls to woo,
In your chamber above
Can you hear the cook too?
"Go out'n the medder and burn that pile of waste I spent the hull morning gettin' together I reckon the least you kin do is burn it for me, drayour infernal molasses disposition."
Farmer Peawicket said to his son Leon. "An' then cut them two trees down and then dig sum potatoes."
"Aw, no," pouted yawned Lazy Leon, the shiftless youth in Kansas, and after stretching himself two or three times he strolled out to the meadow and stood blinking at the pile trying to decide whether it would be least work to scratch the match on his shoe or on the seat of his pants, when suddenly the sky darkened and a streak of lightning shot from the sky and set the heap afire.
"Always was a lucky cuss," chuckled Lazy Leon. He yawned and walked over to the trees that were to be felled, and as he stood regarding them and yawning, an earthquake split the ground and the trees tumbled prostrate, not to say prone.
"Lucky's no name for it," giggled Lazy Leon. "And by heck, of here don't come a big cyclone skyshootin' this direction big enough to tear them potatoes up by the roots!" And as he stood there marveling at his luck, the cyclone arrived, pulled up the potatoes and Lazy Leon too and carried them a thousand miles off into the sea, and when his father heard of it he merely smiled.

Pyorrhoea, The Gum Disease

Which loosens and destroys your teeth.
Is now curable.

I use the latest up-to-date cure. Am getting wonderful results.

Until recently Dentists have had to turn patients away with no hope of helping.

Now it's different.

BOOKS BUILT BY THE PEOPLE.

Are the Most Popular Books Bought by the People.

It must be remembered by our readers that the sale of 300,000 copies of "Heart Throbs" at the publisher's regular price of $3.00 for the two volumes, is a phenomenal sale for any book. But now that the great hold of the work for distribution to their readers at a nominal cost for handling, freight, clerk hire, etc., with coupons clipped from their columns, the circulation will doubtless run into the millions. The 50,000 people contributed their favorite bits of poetry: humorous and sentimental; and prose: history, anecdote and apothegm—struck the great chord of sentiment that is common to all humanity. It is for this reason that the millions and in these books a response to their every mood—and which they can find absolutely in no other collection ever printed. Several hundred gems, each of absorbing heart-interest, each the most precious to some human being who had treasured it as the one bit of sentiment that the nature needed and craved from time to time to cheer or comfort—form a unique possession that gives to "Heart Throbs" its wondrous value. Our coupon printed daily in this paper explains the nature of what is really a gift-distribution.

PASS RESOLUTIONS ON THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Nov. 5.—The council of the Association of Chambers of Commerce has passed the following resolution on the subject of the American rate of exchange, and submitted it to the Chancellor of the Exchequer:

"That in order to be prepared with a remedy, should the American exchange revert to an unfavorable level after the flotation of the issue in the United States of a loan to Great Britain, the council suggests that the Lord's Commissioners of the Treasury should take steps well in advance, and without delay, for considering means by which difficulty may be avoided."

"The council are of opinion, that among the methods available for the purpose of meeting the difficulty are:

(a) The reduction of the importation of articles of luxury by means of import duties at least during the period of the war.

(b) The stimulation on the part of the British government of the export goods produced within British territory such stimulation to take the form of assisting commercial effort.

(c) Inasmuch as debts due to Great Britain abroad in the form of American railroad bonds have been purchased in this country for export and sale in America as means of adjusting the trade balance against Great Britain, steps should be taken to supplement or substitute the export of capital in the form of securities by the export of merchandise.

"This council, while recognizing the enormous difficulties of the exchange situation, wish to place on record their opinion that if the American exchange falls below 4.70 at any time during the present war, the government, in the interests of the British trading community, ought not to remain passive."

SAGE TEA BEST WAY TO TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Combined With Sulphur Makes Good Old-Fashioned Treatment.

A good old-fashioned remedy for graying hair is a compound of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Avoid the trouble of making it yourself by getting a bottle of Sulpho-Sage. This is a famous toilet preparation based on the old-fashioned remedy of sage tea and sulphur. It is in no sense a dye, but merely causes nature to bring back to each gray hair the original rich, dark shade. This is done so evenly that no one knows you are using anything. New gray hairs are kept from showing. Sulpho-Sage removes dandruff, gives your hair a glossy lustre and beauty that will make you look ten years younger. The Clifton Chemical Co., Newark, N. J., make it. Try it if it fails. Get a bottle of Sulpho-Sage to-day from.....

AT THE PRINCESS.

Marie Cahill Tonight. Marie Cahill, the noted stage comedienne, will be presented tonight at the Princess in the most screamingly funny farce, "Judy Forgot."

Judy forgot. She forgot her own name. She did it on her own honey-moon.

Judy Evans, one of the stage stars who could make Broadway audiences laugh, suddenly discovered that one man in the box was straining every effort to catch her glance.

Another strange thing about Judy was the fact that she could not keep from winking every time she smiled. Men who noticed this were wont to accuse her of flirting, but being rather sensitive about it, it just couldn't be helped—that wink of hers—for her mother had done so, and her grandmother. But, anyhow, Judy winked, and straightaway Freddy, who was the particular bold young man who was seated in one of the boxes. A son of wealthy parentage and full of fun, he naturally supposed that the wink was a challenge, and at once set out for the stage, where he boldly walked in to Judy's room and offered his heart and hand to her. Freddy was boldly thrown out by the stage hands, but he remained outside looking up at her window with tears in his eyes. Judy finally married him, and amid a shower of rice the couple left for Europe. The wink and smile soon was the cause of a quarrel and Judy escaped to Marienbad, and the rest of the story gives Miss Cahill plenty of opportunities to create a roar of merriment.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Nov. 5.—A petition has been filed in the Circuit Court of Dane county asking for the organization of a drainage district to drain the Albion marshes and to make the new ditches tributary to Saunders Creek. The proposed ditch is to empty into Saunders Creek within the city limits and will eliminate about two miles that the water has to travel as the creek bed now stands and will force the water in the city in faster than ever before. The petition does not advise the citizens of Edgerton to establish life saving stations along the creek for use in flood times, but it is probable that such steps will be taken later.

Mrs. Clara Williams and Mrs. W. W. Huxtable of Janesville, Mrs. George Pridoux of Mineral Point, and Evelyn Masby of Mason City, Iowa, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Newman yesterday and returned to Janesville on the evening train.

Mrs. W. W. Morrison has gone to Chicago for a week end visit with friends and relatives.

Mrs. Henningson returned yesterday from a three weeks' visit to points in Minnesota.

Mrs. H. Ash went to Oconomowoc yesterday to attend the class adoption and school of instructions for the order of Royal Neighbors. There was a class of 76 initiated and about 200 visiting members of the order were present.

Miss Louise Livick is spending the week as a guest of Miss Maxine Burdick.

Miss Helen Burrington of Stoughton, called on Edgerton friends yesterday.

The morning service will be in English with Holy Communion. The evening service will be in Norwegian. Services will be held at the usual hours.

Congregational Church.

The regular quarterly Communion service will be observed Sunday morning. The minister will preach on "The Value of Memorial." The subject in the evening will be, "Why I Believe in the Church."

Methodist Church.

J. G. Dyer of Turkish Armenia will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday morning. This native of Armenia has been in American ten months, after escaping from the Turkish army, in which he was forced to serve at the outbreak of the great war. STORMED MAJESTIC TO SEE "GRAUSTARK"

McCUTCHEON Romance Charmed and Captivated Yesterday.

That the American public loves keen romance and spirited adventure was clearly demonstrated yesterday by the crowds that packed the Majestic not only in the evening but at the matinee as well.

McCUTCHEON's "Graustark," with Francis X. Bushman as Grenfall Lorry and Beverly Bayne as Princess Yette, came fully up to the high expectations that the spectators brought. Nothing of the charm of the novel was lost. And the cast, from Mr. Bushman down, might have been called "all-star," so thoroughly competent were they all; the costumes and settings were gorgeous, and the scenes both in this country and in the mythical Graustark, picked with admirable judgment and artistic skill. In short, it was a most elaborate and pretentious production of a delightful story.

It will be shown for the last time tonight at 7:30 and 9:00 o'clock.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It's a Good Thing Bridge Parties Don't Come Every Day.

BY F. LEIPZIGER

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES ALL HER LIFE

But Miss Ayres Got a 'Beautiful Complexion' at a Cost of Only $2.00

Nov. 23, 1914.—"All my life my face was covered completely with a mass of pimples, blackheads and blotches. I spent a lot of money on numerous remedies and treatments without success and no relief at all. I tried so many things that I was afraid my case could not be cured. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap seemed to do me good right from the first. I used two jars of Resinol Ointment and some Resinol Soap, the total cost being only $2.00, and this completely cured my case. My skin is without a blemish and I am the possessor of a beautiful complexion." (Signed) Mabel Ayres, Stone Mountain, Va.

Every druggist sells Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and physicians have prescribed them for twenty years in the treatment of eczema and other tormenting skin troubles.

A Message To Thin Weak Scrawny Folks

Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 Pounds of Solid, Healthy Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. This person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fat-making materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. A splendid way of working to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to try Sargol, the famous flesh building agent that has been so widely sold in America in recent years. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and see if your cheeks don't quickly fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh form over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. All good druggists have Sargol or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each large package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

NOTE.—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.—Advertisement.

The Heart of Night Wind

A Story of the Great Northwest

By VINGIE E. ROE

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Company.

The next day but one a fitful, blowy, tearful day, she ventured forth, clad in a smart suit of corduroy that had done service on many a bridge path in the far metropolis—and she sat Black Bolt like a soldier! Sandy watched her go with an unconscious pride in her urban appearance. She rode astride his saddle, but though he admired every line of the splendid pair, he was conscious of a comparison which left something to be desired. Black Bolt with Siletz swinging drunkenly to the dip and lift of his running stride, had been one. They had been the West. This was the East—and it was artificial.

While Sandy stood at the block watching Miss Ordway cantering down the valley, he heard a light step behind and Siletz came around the fling shed. He turned to her, smiling into her eyes, which lighted slowly as they rested on him.

"Where have you been, Little Squaw?" he asked.

"Over the hog-back."

"Eight miles! You shouldn't go off like that, child. Don't you know you might lose yourself in this wilder ness?"

Sandy moved slightly and Siletz glanced across his shoulder down the valley. A gasp, as of indrawn breath made him look up.

Her lips were open and intense as astonishment sat upon her face. For a moment she stared at the distant rider. Then she whirled, so swiftly that one of her long braids whipped across Sandy's face like a lash, and dashed into the lean-to.

When she emerged the dark color had drawn out of her cheeks and lips, leaving them ashen. Her face worked, and Sandy felt back a step at sight of her eyes. They were all savage flaming with a rage which astounded him.

"Where Have You Been, Little Squaw?"

"Why—why—Siletz!" he cried, catching her by the wrist as she passed him. "I didn't know you felt like this about the horse!"

But she flung his grasp loose in a perfect fury and dashed up the steps to the kitchen, the sobs coming wildly.

With an indescribable sensation sending shivers down his spine, the young owner went to his office.

When Miss Ordway returned late in the day her smart habit was stained with mud, her little cap was charmingly awry, and she bore all the earmarks of adventure.

"But I know Hampden of the Yellow Pines," she whispered intimately as Sandy assisted her to dismount. "If I did have to manage a rather spectacular fall and ruin my coat in your unspeakable mud. I think he'll furnish admirable data."

"What?" cried Sandy. "You did that? Well, for the love of heaven! No wonder you can portray a horse folks' emotions! You simply go out and make your situations!"

CHAPTER XII.

Glimmerings of the Great Game.

The work went forward swiftly along the new line. By the end of the week the new cutting was in full swing, the long saws singing, the buckers' broadaxes flashing among the everlasting green, the whole inlaid mass of detail working together.

"What do you think of our chances now, John?" asked the owner.

"A-I. Hain't no reason why we won't win. Th' Dillingworth," said John Daily whimsically, "she's been furnishin' th' goods ever since I can remember."

"True. But she was in pretty close straits for cash. You know she's worth, standing timber, land, options and equipment, something like a million a hundred and fifty-nine thousand dollars, at the pinch price I paid of fifty cents a thousand feet on the stump. At anything like her face value she'd easily double it. And of course you know she's mortgaged to her neck—the East Belt and all the northeast stumpage."

Daily shook his head. "I'm gettin' completely muddled up," he said.

"Well, she was. Her mortgages aggregated a half million—in three different places. About half of them I paid. The rest is hanging free. Frayer, who should have been a mighty rich man, got out with a quarter of a million flat. I don't understand him."

"Neither do I, but I'd stake my head on old man Frayer. Why I've worked for him ten years! He bought in in eighty-nine."

"Well, there's a lot of mystery somewhere about, and as soon as I'm at liberty I intend unearthing things."

Miss Ordway was working feverishly these days. Her rose-leaf cheeks were flushed each noon when she came from the little south room, and her sea-blue eyes were full of an inner excitement.

"She'll make good," Sandy told himself. "She's got the dreamer's look, the pride, the joy, the mighty, arrogant egotism. And she's drunk on the atmosphere of the wilderness, the loneliness, the sense of world's end."

Young and of abundant health, abundant vitality, filled with the urge of ambition, abetted by an unusual cleverness, Miss Ordway was indeed in the way of great things and she knew it. Also with her clear vision she was beginning to see something else that added to the flush in her cheeks, something as great as her goal of fame, and she faced it with her high courage and confidence.

This was the meaning to her of Walter Sandy.

About this time she began to widen her range of vision, to see all over the wild, green country, it seemed to her, and to catch glimmerings of things that sent her to Sandy, so full of vital presence that she was as a charged wire in her eagerness and her delight.

"Mr. Sandy," she said one evening as they stood together on the foot-log and watched the brown tide water going down toward the distant sea, "I'm going to tell you something. I believe Hampden is crooked as hades, and I'm going after him."

"That's funny," said Sandy. "do you know, I've had the same notion?"

She stretched out her hand.

"Let's go after him together. What do you say?"

"Well," Sandy took the hand, an exquisite thing, and held it in his own a moment, warmly, closely—"I am pleased and flattered by your offer, but I don't just fancy your knowing this Hampden man. He's—he's coarse and bad, Miss Ordway."

"But isn't it worth a little risk? What big thing is ever accomplished without some risk? And think, Mr. Sandy—Isn't Hampden trying to ruin the Dillingworth company? In other words, to ruin you?"

There was a tingling, suggestive tingle in her low voice, a subtle, flattering tone that thrilled the young owner strangely.

"Miss Ordway," he said admiringly, "as a man's friend you're simply great!"

"I may have to make frequent demands on Black Bolt," she said further. "For I cannot navigate in your deluged valleys. I'm a poor mariner."

"S-h-h!" warned Sandy. "you don't want to speak about this climate that way. Why, haven't you noticed that the Oregon mist doesn't wet through?"

They laughed together after the fashion of youth and health, though at the last turn of words he felt a vague uneasiness. He remembered Siletz' dark face between her braids and the tears falling on her cheeks.

"Poor little girl!" he said to himself. And on Thursday of that week another horse made its appearance at the camp, a wiry, long-limbed bay, picked up at Toledo.

ways put your hand on a mount at a moment's notice. Black Bolt is so frequently gone when you might need him."

So it came about that the young woman from the East "went after Hampden," and the sharp, crude man of the hills was to be no match for her. By another week she could not ride forth upon the road to the Siletz, ride into Toledo, where she was a matter of wonder in her beauty and her smart clothes, or take the least canter on the rangy bay but what Hampden met her—by the merest chance. She was a revelation to him. In his crude way he was soon at the point where he would have laid down his world for her little finger, and in his loose-limbed soul he swelled with self-appraisal beneath her notice.

What delicate flattery she employed only she herself knew. It was sufficient at least, for he unwound to her his somewhat eventful and picturesque life with the simplicity of a child. They rode and talked, traversing the lonely ways, piercing the mist, threading trails where Hampden had to ride close at her side to keep the wet foliage out of her face, and she saw the passion growing in him to the point of idolatry—which filled her soul with rioting laughter.

"I'll get it—I'll get it!" she told herself, and there was no place in the universe so interesting as this rain-soaked country, this land of mysterious operations.

"What are these little, deserted huts?" she asked him one day when they had climbed high on a wooded ridge and came upon a tiny cabin, wind-dwelled and roofed with shakes. "I've seen several of them."

"Homesteader's cabin," he answered. "Ah—and where's the homesteader?"

For goodness' sake, did any man ever intend a woman to live here?

It was a staggering question to the lumberman, who knew more than any other man in those hills about those deserted shacks. He had been pains-takingly correct in all his dealing with her. It was something he did not understand, some blind instinct of his better self serving his one great passion.

"Well," he said reluctantly. "you see—that is, no. They don't often come here to live. This horse's a snap."

"Ah—yes"—there was a note of vague puzzlement in Poppy's golden voice—"and what is that?"

"Why, a fellow comes up an' takes a claim—proves up on it, you know—gets his patent—an' then sells out. Relinquishes his right to the buyer."

"Oh—and this is only a temporary arrangement." She waved a hand around at the dreary clearing among the lesser growth. "The man who built this didn't intend to stay at the beginning. And who was smart enough enough to buy him off when he got tired of staying, I wonder?"

"I did," said Hampden promptly, flushing at the imputation of brains.

"Easy," said Miss Ordway to herself. "Aloud she said wonderingly: 'Well, what do you know about that? I fancy you made a pretty pile—or will—out of such a deal. Mr. Hampden? Just think of the perfect oceans and oceans of pretty clothes even a dozen of these great trees would buy! Pardon—I think in clothes because I love them.'"

The deference of that "pardon" did for Hampden—and the subtle implication pushed the advantage.

His face was flushed and he sat straight on his horse, his khaki-and-blue-funnel clad figure making a not ungraceful picture against the background of vivid green. He whipped at his laced boots, wet from the ferns, and presently spoke out of a full heart.

"Yes," he said carelessly, "it does take brains. A man has got to think to make money—an' it takes money to buy the things of this life—pretty things."

cinthes, if woman's clothes, Miss Ordway. He suddenly leaned over and laid his rough hand over hers on the pom-pom.

"Every tree would buy a dozen trunks full—an' I own millions of trees."

Her heart was pounding and the sparkle was dancing in her eyes. "Millions? Why, that must cover a great deal of land! Millions of trees?"

"Yes—billions," promised Hampden rashly. He rose in his saddle and looked through a natural opening in the forest down over the dropping ridges.

"Why, look! All that—all that, as far as you can see, to that other ridge and over beyond it and down into the other valley—is mine. I'm a rich man, Miss Ordway, an' I got it—just by this—"

He tapped his forehead significantly and smiled.

"Truly I do admire you," lied Poppy with the naivete of sixteen. "Brains—brains—why, they are nine-tenths of the battle of success and a man without them is beaten at the beginning."

"Partner," she whispered to Sandy as she passed him that night in the dining room. "I've been working. Where can we talk a little by ourselves?"

Sandy, looking at her swiftly, saw the excitement in her eyes, and took fire instantly.

"Alone? Why—let's see. Are you afraid to come out to the forked stick by the road?"

In the darkness Miss Ordway laughed—a little, low ripple of mirth, soft and subtle.

"A tryst!" she said, in that small, intimate whisper that suggested infinite mystery. "Are we out of earshot here?"

"Yes," said Sandy, lowering his voice to hers.

"Do you happen to know where Frayer got all the holdings of the Dillingworth? How he got them?"

"Why, no," said Sandy wonderingly. "I suppose he bought them, as any company would do."

"Yes. So far so good. You know that all this land was government land—that there are still claims lying far back in the mountains open to filing. But all this fine timber close in—has been taken—and have you noticed that all of it, or nearly all, belongs to either one or the other of these two lumber companies?"

"By George!" said Sandy. "I hadn't thought of that!"

Dinner Stories

He was a college professor, greatly beloved because of his kind heart, but with the common scholastic failing of being very absent-minded. He visited his married niece and listened to her praise of her first-born. When she paused for breath, the professor felt that he must say something.

"Can the little fellow walk?" he asked, with every appearance of interest.

"Walk!" cried the mother indignantly.

"Walk!" cried the mother indignantly.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the professor, again relapsing into abstraction. "What a long way he must have gone!"

Edison is a bit of a wag in his way, and he knows how to choke off too inquisitive visitors to his laboratory.

"What is that?" asked an interviewer, pointing to a queer-looking model.

"That," replied the inventor, gravely, "is a motor to run by means of a household as a cook, but failed entirely to give satisfaction. Nearly everything she undertook resulted in failure, and finally the mistress of the house asked in desperation: 'Edna, is there anything you can do?'"

"Yes," was the girl's reply. "Well, tell me what it is," said the mistress.

"I can milk reindeer," said the girl calmly.

City Gas In The Country COOK AND LIGHT WITH GAS

BLAUGAS is not Acetylene Gas, Gasoline Gas, nor allied with them.

Safest Gas Known—Absolutely non-asphyxiating and non-poisonous. Has an explosive of only 4 per cent compared to city gas with 13 per cent and acetylene gas with 47 per cent making it practically non-explosive.

A Dry Gas—No moisture. Will not freeze or condense in the pipes. Needs no protection in the winter.

Costs Less Per Candle Power—than any other system of lighting. The cost compared to electricity is less than 5c per kilowatt; compared to acetylene about one-half.

Over Three Times Hotter Than City Gas—making it ideal for cooking. Has a minimum of 1800 B. T. U. per cubic foot. Combustion is perfect—no dirt or soot to cling to cooking utensils. The only isolated system that furnishes gas cheaply enough to be used for cooking.

THE BLAUGAS APPARATUS IS ABSOLUTELY WEATHERPROOF (IS INSTALLED OUTDOORS) REQUIRING NO ATTENTION BEYOND THE CHANGING OF BOTTLES—NO GENERATING, NO DIET, NO HEATING, NO WATER CONNECTIONS, NO LIFTING OF WEIGHTS. NEEDS NO PROTECTION FROM THE WEATHER. NOTHING TO RUST OUT OR CLOG UP. THE SIMPLEST ISOLATED SYSTEM EVER DEvised—JUST CONNECT AND USE.

How to Make Want Ads Pay

Example No. 13

How to Sell Your Business

The first question that occurs to a person who reads a Want Ad that offers an established business for sale is this: "What is wrong? Why does he want to sell?"

You should answer this question in your Want Ad. That wipes out the doubt that is sure to arise if you do not explain. Here are some illustrations of right and wrong ways of advertising a business for sale:

THE WRONG WAY
FOR SALE—A MOTION PICTURE theater; capacity, 250; lease has 8 years to run. Records for past year show outlay of $6,210 and receipts of $16,100—net profit, $9,890. Reason for selling: Owner must move to California on account of ill health. Call me up on phone.

FOR SALE—RESTAURANT, centrally located; 6 years for lease to run. Capacity, 250; average meals served, 1200 daily. Big profits. Cheap to right person. Why does the owner wish to sell? The other ad tells why!

THE RIGHT WAY
FOR SALE—A MOTION PICTURE theater; capacity, 250; lease has 8 years to run. Records for past year show outlay of $6,210 and receipts of $16,100—net profit, $9,890. Reason for selling: Owner must move to California on account of ill health. Call me up on phone.

FOR SALE—RESTAURANT, centrally located; 6 years for lease to run. Capacity, 250; average meals served, 1200 daily. Average business, 1200 meals daily. Average profit, $9,890. Reason for selling: Owner must devote time to manufacturing interests. A real bargain. Address at once.

The Reason for Selling Must be Satisfactory

You must give a reason! Give a reasonable reason. Do not offer as your reason that you and your partner have quarreled. Poor business may have made your quarrel!

Here are some perfectly acceptable reasons for selling your business: Death of partner, ill health of partner or yourself, interests in other lines demand your time, moving out of town, retiring, getting too old, going on long journey, or anything else that is believable.

When you give a good reason,

John Sutner Finds Another Lark and Decides to Stop It Up.

John, I am afraid I will have to get into a pair of shoes this week," said Molly, looking apologetic tone. "His feet are almost on the ground."

"Another pair?"

"Isn't it more than a week since I got the last ones? You must remember that I am getting a pair of dollars a week less for ten weeks now, until Benson's fifty dollars is paid up. John has a second-hand pair than usually, but I have been wearing the last few days and I don't want to wear the shoes, but she was afraid that the child would take cold with his feet."

"Now don't get touchy. I've enough to stand without your beginning that again. Besides, I do think you could watch Jack a little and keep him from wearing his shoes out so fast."

"All mothers say that the shoe bill is the biggest item in clothing a child," replied Molly. "What can you expect from an active child? He's worn them almost a month."

"Ah, I guess I know better," interrupted John.

"I can prove it by the bill," Molly rose and vanished into the bedroom, and soon reappeared waving it triumphantly. "It was three weeks last Tuesday."

John took the bit of paper in his hand. It is a little better than I thought. "I'll take him down stairs and get home tonight and see if I can't find a pair that will wear a little longer than the last ones. Let me get them. He can't wear heavy shoes. They'll hurt his feet," Molly looked appealingly at her husband.

"There you go. He is a poor man's son and may as well begin to realize the fact. The child of the poor can't wear soft hand-sewed shoes that wear out every three or four weeks. That has been one of our leaks and it has to be stopped along with the rest. I thought you were anxious to save. That is what you have been talking all so fast."

"I am anxious to save," blurted out Molly, but I can't bear to have Jack's dear little feet made sore and perhaps start trouble that may be hard to get rid of by putting clumsy, hard shoes on him. We will save some other way and that way, too. John's tone was harsh and the boy had a scornful look on his face and sidled off of his chair and took refuge under his mother's arm with his head in her lap. "It is just about the time for our foolish notions. Jack is getting to be a big and dear," John could not stand it to have the boy afraid of him.

"Molly saw that it was useless to say anything. One of the ways in which her self-discipline was showing was in her ability to leave a disagreeable subject before a violent row was precipitated."

"Well, we need to save; trying this will do no harm," she thought and sighing, showed back her chair and began to clear the dinner table.

ground. The tension of such trying circumstances was almost more than she could bear.

"Get them, John," she exclaimed, flushing angrily. "I would rather do without everything myself than ask for it, but I cannot see the boy suffer and keep silent. I will take some money out of the house-keeping allowance and say so, only that means less to spend on the child." As John did not reply, she added resentfully: "Perhaps you think I wore the shoes out myself very carelessly."

MILITARY TONE FOR GOTHAM HORSE SHOW

National Horse Show, Annual Fashion Exhibition, Will Open in New York To-morrow.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New York, Nov. 5.—The aristocracy of American society and the thoroughbred of horsemen were having their gowns finely fitted and their coats smartly groomed today in anticipation of the opening to-morrow of the first National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden in two years.

The "tone" of the show will be decidedly military. In addition to the military trends of the fashions, frills and turbulences, which, of course, be the big feature of the show, not excluding the horses themselves, there will be much display of red, white and blue, consecutively shot with the flags of all nations.

One of the biggest "horse" features of the show will be the military classes, which will be judged by no less a personage than Maj. Leonard Wood, and not only the military classes, but the war babies of the stock exchange will be there, belligerently intent upon cannonading their way into society via the riding stock.

Picked militiamen from New York and other states will compete with the army men in a series of riding events that will take up much of the show's six-day program. They will start at the Borestone challenge cup presented by Lord Borestone, the Canadian challenge cup given by Sir Adams Beck of London, Ontario.

Between the many new exhibitors, principally from the middle west, who are just coming into the city, and the dollars getting their "strut" together, there is expected to be war to the last felloe.

So you see, the Horse Show this year will be, as you might say, all there but the bullets.

Household Hints

USES OF PEARS.

Pear Marmalade—Three pints sliced pears, three lemons and three pints sliced and cooked with pears until tender, then add sugar and pint raisins, 10c jar preserved vinegar. Put in glasses.

Pear Conserve—Two pounds pears, one pound figs, two pounds white sugar, two tablespoons vinegar. Grind or chop pears and figs, then boil all together until thick, add one and one-quarter pound meat out in small tins. Put in glasses.

Fried Pear—Wash, pare, quarter and core Kieffer pears, put into saucepan with sufficient water to cover, salt, lid and cook until tender. Sweeten to taste. Put in colander and drain, heat skillet, use level teaspoonful butter and when melted and sides and bottom are greased, turn pears into skillet, add small amount of sugar, cover close and when syrup is formed increase heat until pears are nicely browned.

THESE HINTS LIGHTEN YOUR HOUSE-CLEANING.

To Refreshen Linoleum—Wash clean with dry perfectly. With clean paint brush apply white shoe polish, being careful not to lap the strokes. Will not change the color, will brighten its service and dry in one hour.

To Clean Looking Glasses—Take a newspaper, fold it small and dip it in a basin of clean, cold water. Then thoroughly wet, squeeze it out as you do a sponge. Then rub it pretty hard all over the surface of the glass, taking care that it is not so wet as to run down in streams. In fact, the paper must be completely moistened or dampened all through. Let it rest a few minutes, then go over the glass with a piece of fresh, dry newspaper till it looks clear and bright.

To Clean Leather Furniture—An excellent way of cleaning leather furniture is to wipe the lamp cloth to take off the dirt. When it is dry wipe again with a soft cloth dipped in the beaten white of an egg. Let the egg dry and then polish with a soft cloth.

Water Made Very Strong by boiling onions in it will clean gilt frames or ornaments without injury. Put a blotter over grease spots on paper and apply a hot iron until heated through. Repeat if necessary.

When Vegetables become wilted and stale before you can use them, place them for an hour in a gallon of water to which a teaspoonful of baking soda has been added. They will be as crisp and fresh as when gathered from the garden.

THE TABLE.

Golden Stars—Make an ordinary sponge cake batter; bake in star-shaped tins. One box marshmallows, one cup pecan nuts, one-quarter cup powdered sugar. Bake immediately on taking from oven break apart stars and lay one marshmallow which has been covered with nuts, inside. Put the other half of the star (this must be done quickly) over the cake cools, so the marshmallow will melt. Sprinkle the top with powdered sugar.

Apple, Date and Celery Salad—Dice about three tart apples, chop together several stalks of celery and small cupful of dates. Add to apples and pour over all a generous quantity of mayonnaise, to which a cupful of whipped cream has been added.

BEEF SALAD.

Boil and peel the beets, then cut a slice off the bottom of each so that the beets will stand upright. Scoop out the inside carefully. Cut the portion of beet removed from the centers into small cubes and add equal parts of cold boiled potato, celery and chopped nuts. Mix with salad dressing and fill the beet shells with the mixture, laying a slice of hard boiled egg on top of each.

For Faded Carpets.

To revive the colors of a faded rug or carpet—apply, after a thorough sweeping, a weak solution of alum.

A TWO-FACED GOWN IS FASHION'S BEST

Garment That Leads a Double Life Described This Week—Notes of the Fashion World.

Oh where are the terrors of suburbia? Commuting, oh where is thy? Since wide wears two in one garments. The joys of the country we sing.

New York, Nov. 5.—Hurrah for the garment that leads a double life! It may sound as if it were suitable for only the two-faced woman, but indeed all and every woman hails it with delight, the Queen of the Commuters in particular.

You see it is a costume fashioned with a long, loose coat over a short, full skirt, giving thereby the simple elegance of a very smart and modish suit.

But be not deceived! When military unbuttoned said coat the double dealing is at once revealed. She stands forth resplendent in a stunning, semi-train all together, presto changed! Another complete frock is displayed, and this time the double dealing is truly as the coat around the bottom of

A True Friend.

"He that doth a base thing in zeal for a friend burns the golden thread that ties their hearts together." — Jeremy Taylor.

Oh, how true. You know I'm dying to hear something real interesting."

"No, I can't; it wouldn't be fair to the girl who told me. I promised her I wouldn't breathe a word to anyone."

"But you needn't tell me the names, just tell me the story without any names."

"You would guess if I did that?"

"You wouldn't. Besides, I think you might tell me. I remember I told you about our engagement before I told anyone else."

"I know, my dear, and it was lovely of you; but that was your secret, and this isn't mine."

"But I wouldn't tell a soul," persisted the tease.

Her Final Decision Was Not to Tell.

The possessor of the secret shook her head. "I wish I could, but I can't," she said regretfully but firmly.

"You wait. I'll make you tell it yet," threatened the other, half laughing and half piqued.

To ended the conversation to which I had been a passive witness. The next time I saw the tease I asked her if she had found out the secret.

"No," she said, "she wouldn't tell me."

"Werent you really glad, after all?" I asked.

"Glad? Why?"

"Well, you like to tell her things. Werent you glad to know that she couldn't be persuaded to tell her friend's secrets?"

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM GRADY, M. D.

The Nature of Diabetes.

Diabetes is a condition in which the body fails to metabolize, or utilize in the normal way, glucose, the blood sugar, and other food elements.

It occurs at all ages, more often in males, sometimes running in families, is probably more frequent among the well-to-do classes, and it is certainly very frequent among negroes.

The disease may be experimentally produced by removing a portion of the pancreas, or "sweetbread," of an animal. Studies of such animals have already taught physicians how to cure most cases of diabetes, as we shall explain in a later talk. The pancreas, in health, supplies to the intestinal canal several ferments, one of which converts sugars and starches into glucose or blood sugar. The pancreas also supplies to the blood an "internal secretion" which is essential for the utilization of blood sugar for the needs of the body.

Diabetes is now believed to be due to some inherent or acquired defect of the internal secretion function of the pancreas. For some unknown reason the cells of the pancreas which elaborate the internal secretion fail to do their work thoroughly.

Rapid advance in our knowledge of the ductless glands (pituitary at base of brain, thyroid in neck, suprarenal capping each kidney, spleen, and in one sense the pancreas itself) is helping to solve these days' puzzling laboratory and animal experiments. And among other advantages according to the human race from these investigations, we are now met with the practical control of diabetes in the majority of cases. In the near future it is quite possible that we shall witness the conquest of this hitherto baffling disease.

Before we take up our readers' queries let us utter just one of those unorthodox slanders for which this

Use this clean pure milk

The quickest and surest way to get milk you can depend upon always to be wholesomely rich, and pure, is to buy of your grocer—CARNATION MILK—Clean, Sweet, Pure—From Contented Cows—It is safe for baby.

It adds a rich flavor in cooking and is most convenient. It is easily whipped. It makes splendid desserts that the whole family will enjoy.

For drinking, it is healthful and nourishing. It has a distinctive pure taste, which you will pronounce delicious after a few trials.

the skirt is the link between two complete costumes in one, the key to the sartorial situation.

It is deep enough to reach up to the coat when that is donned and effect the perfect picture of a suit and yet, with the coat removed, the dark, deep skirtband lends richness to the dinner frock exposed, the bodice of which has touches of the same dark toned material to balance up the second of the two in one costumes.

A perfect toilette indeed for the commuter's bride. She can come in early and do her shopping in a fitting and fitted suit and then when fond husband asks her to stay in town to dinner and go to the theatre after wards, she may accept with perfect equality and a perfect frock.

Rubby is always bound to ask her, too, when he sees what a ravishing toilette she has up her coat sleeve. Oh, no commuter's home should be without one of these two fold blessed frocks.

Another bit of double dealing that Dame Fashion is up to this season is an evening gown that becomes its own wrap. It also becomes its own wearer very much.

Fashioned of the fluty tulle or the new "sole de sole" is made with a detachable satin or velvet train falling from the shoulders in back and a like straight panel falling from the corset in front. This train is so devised as to tuck up around the shoulders and fasten to the front panel, thereby forming an effective evening wrap.

This gown even goes one better and adds a third to its changing charms. By shedding the train and train all together, presto changed! Another complete frock is displayed, and this time the double dealing is truly as the coat around the bottom of

She cocked her head and looked at me thoughtfully, while she mullied over the matter to her new aspect.

"That's different!"

"Yes," she said. "Of course I don't want her to tell the things I tell her, but 'That's different,' I finished for her."

"Exactly," she said, with a rather shamefaced laugh that showed she realized her own injustice.

It is unjust, isn't it? to try to make our friends act in their relation to us as we would want them to act in relation to ourselves?

And yet I have often heard women beg each other to tell others secrets, as in this case, and I have also frequently heard one friend urge another to break an engagement in her favor.

It is a Mean Thing To Do.

It is a mean and foolish thing to do. You discomfit your friend by your entreaties if he refuses; you lose, whether you admit it or not, some of your respect for and trust in him if he acquiesces.

You should never ask a friend to treat anyone else as you would not want him to treat you. And when you meet the spirit of, you could not love these dear, so well, loved I not honor more, in friendship should respect and rejoice in it, not try to break it down by your entreaties.

Many mean some small loss in ungratified curiosity or in some minor disappointment, but it means the infinitely greater gain of the knowledge that you have a true friend.

hygienic for a dwelling, steam heat or hot air?

Answer—Hot air, of course. A steam heating plant works best when ventilation is a wee bit below quality. A warm air plant is most effective when ventilation is perfect. Chilled.

Please tell me what to do to prevent and relieve chills.

Answer—Send in your stamped, addressed envelope for letter of advice.

WOMEN'S RESERVE CORPS IN AMBULANCE SERVICE AIDED DURING THE RAID

London, Nov. 5.—The Women's Reserve Ambulance got a chance to show what it can do on the night of the big Zeppelin raid on London Oct. 19. How the women acquitted themselves is told by one of their number, Captain Kilroy Kenyon in "Votes for Women."

"We were all laughing and talking together," she says, "when suddenly we heard guns and bombs in the distance. It was a tremendous test of the efficacy of the drilling and discipline of the last few months, for none of the girls had really been tested in an emergency before. They all behaved magnificently from beginning to end. In a second they were all in their places, attention waiting for orders. The orders were given and in less than a minute we were in the ambulance and off."

"The driver, Capt. Linton-Orman, was wonderful. She drove us to the first fire in twelve minutes and in pitch darkness, for every light was turned out. When we arrived the police asked us how on earth we had managed to get there in the time."

At the first place they reached, no one had been killed or injured and they started immediately for the nearest place where bombs had fallen. Here it was found that several persons had been killed or injured. The women took command of the situation and, after doing what could be done on the spot for the injured, drove them to the nearest hospital. It was not until they were just about to start, says Captain Kenyon, that another ambulance appeared on the scene, only to be told by the police, "The dies have finished this job and there is nothing left for you to do."

At the third place to which the ambulance was driven, that same night, there was also work for the women to do. Although no one had been killed or seriously injured by bombs, several firemen, who had been engaged fighting the fires caused by the bombs, had been overcome by smoke. They were given first aid by the women and then driven in an ambulance to the hospital.

The Women's Reserve Ambulance is an offshoot of the Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps, which was started by the Hon. Mrs. Haverfield, a vice president of the United Suffragists, soon after the war broke out. It began with six members. It now has two hundred. It is run on military lines and with military titles, too, with day and night shifts ready to turn out whenever an alarm sounds.

JOASH REPAIRS HIS TEMPLE.

The temple in Jerusalem was not just a place of worship. It was in itself a monument to religion. It not merely contained the venerated souvenirs of the faith and afforded a place of devotion to those who came to avail themselves of it, but it was also the most magnificent and appropriate memorial to spiritual religion ever reared. The material condition of the temple was therefore significant. It was a barometer indicating the rise or fall of religious feeling. If kept in repair and adorned it tokened that religion was ascending and vice versa. At this time the sacred place was in a pitiful plight. A great building needs constant and close attention for its preservation. A corps of workmen with competent overseers needs to be employed, and a large amount of money annually expended. Just neglect is enough to insure ruin. But in this instance there was not more inactivity. The structure was rilled and desecrated. It became a quarry out of which the rival temple of Baal was built and furnished. It is no wonder that King Joash turned to the restoration of the temple as the first act of his reign. It had sheltered him in his defenseless infancy when the monster Athaliah sought his life. In the secret of this tabernacle he had been successfully hidden for six years. Under its splendid porch and between its great pillars he had been anointed, crowned, and proclaimed king. Its high priest had been his foster-father. The priests and Levites had been his bodyguard on the day of his coronation. Its armory had furnished the weapons for his defense. The importance of the proposed restoration of the temple is significantly indicated. It is the one event in the long reign of forty years on which the chronicler utters special accent. Joash alone stood out to shore up the falling temple. That is the one important achievement of his reign. He considered the repair a pressing business. The honor of Jehovah required the complete obliteration of Athaliah's sacrifice and the removal of the old gods from the temple. The measure was in the necessary funds proved inadequate, if not futile. The priests were to canvass for subscriptions. There is nothing to indicate that they misappropriated the money. The plain fact is they did not get any. So that there was none to divert. With the inveterate selfishness of human nature, they looked out for their own support first, and there was no balance to the credit of the building fund.

The next day succeeded. The Jew was not solicited at home and remote from the temple, but on the ground, where he could himself witness the ravages of the vandal Athaliah. He had sufficiently inspected the ruin of the sanctuary, wrought by the idolatrous princess, he would come across the receptacle, conspicuously and conveniently placed. Its open mouth begged for an offering for the restoration of the temple. There was no danger of perversion of his gift. What he placed there was exclusively for this purpose. Then, too, the sight of others giving provoked him to generosity. The temple was in standing; and largely popular. A yellow stream poured into the improvised treasury. The strong chest had often to be unlocked by the high priest and its contents audited. The king's scribe. Soon there was enough and to spare for the repair, renovation and refurbishing of the temple. As the building itself was a sign of the covenant, its restoration by the free gifts of the people was a token of the revival of the covenant between Jehovah and his people. It is a pity that the king who wrought this notable deed for God and his country in later years apostatized. A black veil must be drawn over the later career of Joash like that over the recant dog of Venice. He became an idolater and encouraged idolatry, paradoxical as it may seem. He went one step further in sacrilege and laid violent hands upon the High Priest Zechariah. If religion had no power to stay him, it would seem that human feeling would have been sufficient. His victim was the playmate of his boyhood. He was the son of Jehoiada, who had sheltered Joash from the murderous spirit of Athaliah and placed him on the throne. Retribution was swift, as it was merited. Joash was the first king of Judah to come to a violent death by the hands of his own subjects and to be denied a kingly sepulcher.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.
There were several strains of blood in Joash's veins—some good and some evil. He was not responsible for this; he would not choose his ancestors. But something was certain, a weakness lower, he could say which term, only should have right of way, which strain of blood should be ascendant. In asserting the power of heredity, it has been said that it is the good blood that rules us. But the live and the dead are one. All unworthy ancestral ghosts can be laid. Where there's a will, there's a way. Jehoiada was a better monitor to Joash than Seneca was to Nero. Perhaps, however, Nero, worse subject. But Joash seems not to have been able to stand alone without his priestly counselor, for after the latter's death he apostatized in a miserable way. The final test of character is its ability to stand without a prop. The religion which always needs bolstering is not of much account. It is said that it costs $50,000 per annum to keep St. Peter's Cathedral in repair. There is a little village on the roof of the cathedral where the workmen live. If this outlay of money was remitted for awhile and the workmen discharged, one can easily see how the vast building would get out of repair. But in this instance Solomon's Temple was not only neglected—it was looted. * * * Sticking stubbornly to the first-adopted plan is often a matter of dogged pride. It's the broad-minded person who cancels self, drops the plan which proves futile, and adopts another. Jehoiada did that when he substituted the chest scheme for the personal canvass. * * * What the Roman Forum is to Rome and the Acropolis is to Greece, the temple is to Palestine. A history of the temple is a history of the nation. Names illustrious and ignoble, deeds valorous and despicable, doctrines of faith and usages of ritual—all are shrined and exemplified there. It is the epitome of thousands of years. It is no wonder that the repair of such a building became a matter of State, and that the king took personal supervision of it. But the crown was not able as a Solomon's day, to carry out the enterprising plan. The cooperation of the people must needs be urged, and there was the reflex advantage incident to such co-operation. * * * God is absolutely independent, but He has made Himself relatively dependent, not for His own advantage, but for that of His creatures. For example, in His infinite power He could have built His own temple and kept it in repair. But it pleased the Owner of the universe to make Himself a mendicant and come and ask aid in order that His creatures might have the reflex advantage of voluntary co-operation with Him in His enterprises.

Additional Drawings Made To Insure Settlement of Fort Berthold Tract
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Minot, N. D., Nov. 5.—To assure the taking up of all the 700 homesteads of the Fort Berthold reservation, several hundred extra drawings were drawn today, bringing the total number drawn to 2,050. Should any of the 700 winners selected yesterday relinquish the privilege of filing on a 160 acre tract when the land is opened to entry next May, the holders of the additional numbers drawn in order of their position would be given an opportunity to select a homestead.

The Women's Section all Aglow With New Suits and Coats

Is It Any Wonder that this is a Coat Season, and that The Golden Eagle Leads the way with Fashionable Smartness?
Coats for all occasions for Women Misses and Girls
Most of the coats are made to either completely cover the dress or come within a few inches of the hem—roomy, comfortable, all-enveloping and withal, so graceful in their sweeping effects. The fullness in some, it will be noted, starts from just below the hips, in others from the waist line; in other instances from the shoulder or yoke. The collars are high, comfortable and cozy; chin, military or muffler styles, and in many cases are of fur. The sleeves are large, set in at the regulation arm-hole, or made in raglan effect and finished off with deep cuffs to match the collar. Novelty pockets are a feature; on some different side and back belts are employed. The materials are rich wool velours, wool plushes, kitten's ear, Zibelines, velvet, corduroys, high grade mixtures, broadcloths, blanket effects and deep pile fabrics.
The usual price range, but great values at each price.

A Great Showing of Women's Suits
We continue to offer hundreds of the season's most popular models in Women's and Misses' Suits in Broadcloths, Poplins, Gaberdines, Velvets, many with fur trimmings and others are plain tailored models, some belted and with flare skirt. Values that are cut off the ordinary.

There is no shortage of replies to advertisements in the classified columns of the Gazette. Mr. Hughes, R. F. D. No. 5, is quite satisfied with his experience.

The Gazette Printing Co. Janesville, Wis., Nov. 2, 1915. Gentlemen: On October 27 I telephoned the following want ad to your paper.

WANT A MAN BY THE MONTH to work on farm. Must be good milker. B. E. Hughes, Rte. 5, Bell phone 5022 black. 5-10-27-33d

That same evening I received a call from a man wanting work, who saw the ad. My man was at work the next morning and within the next three days received nine telephone calls and two letters from a neighboring town, all wanting to work. The next time I put an ad in your paper I will hire some one to answer the phone as we haven't time.

Yours respectfully R. F. D. 5. B. E. HUGHES.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, November 5, 1875.—We did not know that Mr. Aron Sonneborn of this city, was a candidate for Governor, until we looked over the official canvas. He received one vote over which he probably had control. How is that, Aron?

The town pump was frozen up this morning for the first time this season. So the members of the Corn Exchange were compelled to change their beverage.

Many of the horses which were afflicted with epizootic several days ago are rapidly recovering.

The workmen began this morning to lay the brick on the front of Mr. Tallman's blocks, South Main street.

The county supervisors committee on claims have been holding a session at the county clerk's office for the last two or three days, and will likely finish at noon. The board will meet next Tuesday.

The thermometer at seven o'clock this morning fell to 25 degrees above zero. An unusually heavy frost was the result.

Builders Hardware

We wish to call attention to this immense line. It comprises such a varied assortment that it is utterly impossible to price it. To all who contemplate building it will be to their great advantage to come to this sale and get the benefit of the tremendous reduction in prices.

The celebrated Corbin line of Locks are included in this big sale.

WE are re-arranging and marking down the stock and will have it ready for the opening day tomorrow. We cannot quote prices on everything as it is a physical impossibility. Every article in this mammoth stock will have the price on it SLASHED even if it does not appear in the prices above. This statement is bona-fide and will be lived up to in every respect.
